

The Arizona Kith and Kin Project Evaluation Summary 2010-2014

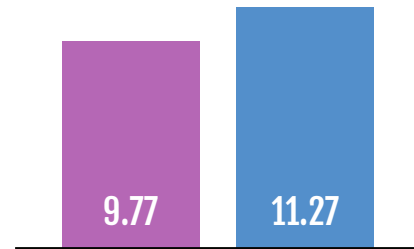

This study presents findings from a three-year research evaluation of the Arizona Kith and Kin Project. The goal was to explore changes in quality of child care after Family, Friend, and Neighbor providers completed a 14-week professional development project. Pre and post observations of provider practices were conducted in child care providers' homes by trained observers. The following highlighted improvements in outcomes were all statistically significant.

■ Pre-Project ■ Post-Project

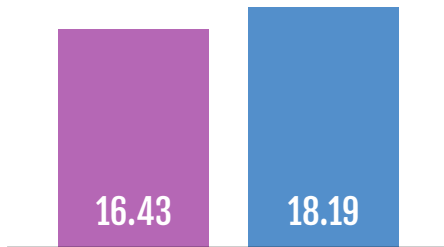

Increases in Responsive Caregiving

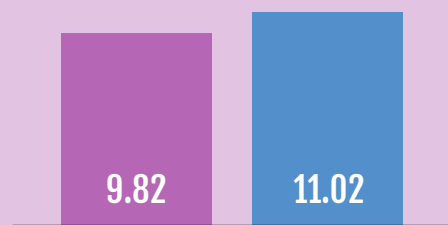

Increases in Effective Teaching

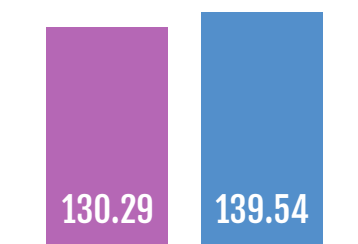

Increases in Health and Safety Practices

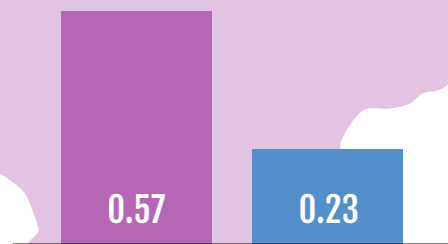

Increases in Physical Learning Environment

Increases in Bi-Directional Communication

Decreases in Harsh Caregiving
